Gospel: Luke 20:27-38 Reflection by Reginald H. Fuller

This pericope is known as the “Sadducees’ question.” The long form of the gospel reading spells out the question in full. It is framed in terms of the Jewish law, and was an attempt by the Sadducees, who denied the resurrection, to reduce that hope to an absurdity by a fictitious and improbable case arising from the so-called levirate law (Deut 25:5 cf. Gen 38:8). Since that law is no longer relevant in the Christian Church, the option is given of omitting the question. Jesus’ answer makes two points about the resurrection. First (see our comments on the first reading), resurrection is not a prolongation of our present earthly life but an entirely new mode of existence, in which marriage and giving in marriage are unknown. Since in the new life there is no more death, there is no need for provision to perpetuate the human race (this explanation is peculiar to Luke).

The second point in Jesus’ answer is that the Pentateuch, far from rendering the resurrection an absurdity, has an understanding of God that is fully consistent with such a hope.

This conclusion is reached by an argument which would be convincing to Jesus’ contemporaries but which seems artificial to us. The Bible goes on talking about God as the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob even after their death—therefore they must still be alive.

The alert reader will note that the first answer deals with the problem of resurrection, a Palestinian-Jewish problem, whereas the second part really answers an entirely different question, namely, one about immortality, a more Hellenistic concept.

One suspects that two different traditions have been combined somewhere along the line. The essential point—that of the second part of Jesus’ answer—is that the Christian future hope depends, not upon wishful thinking, but upon the very nature of the God we believe in.

God has revealed himself in biblical experience as essentially the God of the living. In biblical history, in both the Old and New Testaments, he enters into a personal relationship with human beings, and that relationship—God being the kind of God that he is, in fact being God and not anything else—cannot be destroyed, even by death.

“Neither death nor life ...

will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord”(Romans 8:39).

From the Cathedral Parish Environment Group

Draft concept plans for the garden to foster healing and reconciliation are on display in the south transept of the Cathedral. The group is keen to hear from parishioners and receive your feedback. Many thanks to those who have already done so. A suggestion box is available near the display.

Visit of Fr James Mallon Author of the Book Divine Revelation

Fr James is the author of Divine Renovation: From A Maintenance To A Missional Parish and Parish Priest of St Benedict's, Halifax (Nova Scotia, Canada). Over several years, a discipleship process has emerged at St Benedict's which has been producing remarkable results. This strategy is a dynamic discipleship pathway which parishes can develop. Many Cathedral parishioners who have participated in the Alpha program will be attending – they invite others to join them as they travel to Box Hill on Wednesday November 16th, departing 5.00 pm. Contact the Cathedral Office to register your interest.

Developing a Culture of Safety

The Cathedral Parish continues to work towards developing a culture of safety for all, especially Children and Vulnerable adults. Guided by the policy of the Ballarat Diocese for Safeguarding Children and Vulnerable Adults and the Code of Conduct for Working with Children, Cathedral parishioners who work with children and vulnerable adults are required to have a current Working With Children Check and to have completed the Online training module about protecting children and vulnerable adults. To assist us we are seeking expressions of interest from parishioners who would be interested in being the Parish Safeguarding Officer to provide support to other parishioners and ensure that all safeguarding procedures outlined in the Code of Conduct for Caring for Children and the new Child Safe Standards are complied with.

Training will be provided through Michael Myers, the Professional Standards Coordinator for the Diocese of Ballarat. Contact Fr Justin for further information.

The Diocesan Ecological Sustainability Group (ECOS)

encouraging parishes to spread the word of Laudato Si.

A challenge from Laudato Si: On care for our common home (Pope Francis, 2015) reminds us that each one of us has a distinctive gift to offer our world and we each have a part to play. "All of us can co-operate as instruments of God for the care of creation, each according to his or her own culture, experience, involvements and talents" (LS 14). To achieve this belief, we must first recognize that there is a deep interconnection between all created things. Action: Use fewer paper and plastic products – use a re-usable water bottle, use cloth bags for shopping.
