TRINITY COLLEGE 'PRAYER FOR STUDENTS' THIS WEEK:

Loving God,
 be with our students now as they prepare for their exams. Thank you for the many talents and gifts you have given them and for the opportunity of education they have engaged in at Trinity.
 Calm their nerves and anxieties, help them to remember all that they have studied, to express it clearly and to answer the questions they face to the very best of their abilities. May they keep everything in proportion and realise that they are precious and loved beyond any exam and any exam result.
 Holy Spirit, sit with our students in their exams - and always. Amen.
 Mother of Mercy, pray for us Live, Jesus in our Hearts, for ever.

OLD WORDS OF CIVILITY RING FRESH AND NEW

“Healing. It was the little word with all the weight once the fireworks and the dancing and the cheers had died away. It is a word - an idea - that had been missing for too long from the vocabulary of an American leader. Joe Biden and Kamala Harris gave it the heft it deserved after only once naming the President who had exiled it for the past four years. Faith and hope, dignity and respect. Unity. Defeating despair. The old words of civility rang fresh and new in the mouths of those who soon enough will inhabit the White House, and who were claiming the victory that had been long in the coming. “Let’s restore the soul of America,” said Joe Biden, finally the President-elect. “Joe is a healer,” said Kamala Harris. Biden reminded everyone that Senator Harris was the first woman, the first black woman, the first woman of south-Asian heritage and the first of immigrant parents to become Vice-President-elect. So many qualities in a single figure that were long overdue from the leadership team of such a diverse nation. What did not need to be said was that for the past four years, the world had been treated to the spectacle of a US President apparently incapable of displaying empathy, pursing his lips and enthusiastically exploiting the divisions across his nation, rather than trying to heal them. And where was Trump as Biden and Kamala Harris gave their soul-laden speeches? Bunkered in the White House, post-golf, even his Twitter stream silent. Earlier he had rage-tweeted “I WON THIS ELECTION, BY A LOT!” No concession speech seemed in prospect. The President of the United States seemed nothing so much as the pathetic kid at school who, realising he was losing the hundred-metre dash, always staged a fall before the end, squalling about how he would have won if he hadn’t tripped or got bumped.

Trump, of course, was bearing the humiliation he heaped on contestants in the so-called reality TV show that delivered him what passes for celebrity in America. “You’re fired,” he snarled again and again on The Apprentice. This time, it was the American democratic system that was sacking him.

Biden offered oblique sympathy, though not for Trump himself.

“For all those who voted for President Trump, I understand the disappointment tonight,” he said, urging everyone to put away the harsh rhetoric and to listen to each other again. “I have lost a couple of times myself.” And so, he had. Biden presents as a homespun, ordinary man, a son of the modest city of Scranton, Pennsylvania - the state that, deliciously, handed him the crucial electoral votes at the weekend - who grew up being teased for his stutter. But he is not an ordinary man in the sense that suggests the mundane. Here, finally, he was President-elect, speaking for himself about the America whose soul he wanted to restore. “Our nation is shaped by the constant battle between our better angels and our darkest impulses,” he said. “And what presidents say in this battle matters. It’s time for our better angels to prevail.” This being an American victory, Biden quoted Psalm 91 to define his meaning of healing. “And he will raise you up on eagles’ wings, bear you on the breath of dawn and make you shine like the sun....” Now, he might reflect, comes the hard part.

\*Wonderful that a young man coming from Portland can speak from his ‘home’ experience to help us all reflect:” (Sourced ~ Tony Wright ‘The Age 08.11.2020).*

PLENARY COUNCIL PRAYER

Come, Holy Spirit of Pentecost. Come, Holy Spirit of the great South Land.

O God, bless and unite all your people in Australia and guide us on the pilgrim way of the Plenary Council. Give us the grace to see your face in one another and to recognise Jesus, our companion on the road. Give us the courage to tell our stories and to speak boldly of your truth. Give us ears to listen humbly to each other and a discerning heart to hear what you are saying. Lead your Church into a hope-filled future, that we may live the joy of the Gospel. Through Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen
