As We Move Towards COVID-Normal...

Because this bulletin is prepared and published on Fridays, we do not yet know if any significant changes for church-goers can be expected this weekend. If there is any notable development we shall endeavour to update the online version of The Parish Pump as soon as possible. Information on the paper version won't change until next week. Meanwhile, Father Michael is delighted to have been able to celebrate Mass with residents at Mercy Place on the past two Thursdays and fervently hopes to be able to say Mass with a congregation in the church before too long.

Catholic Mission Diaries

Catholic Mission, the agency which forms Australians for mission and raises funds for their ministry, has sent us some 2021 diaries. If you would like one, there are some in the Mary MacKillop chapel and some others in the parish office which is open on Tuesday and Friday mornings and in those afternoons until 3:30 p.m. The diaries are free to take away.

Move to DOBCEL

Catholic Parish Schools, which have been supervised and cared for ("governed") by Parish Priests from the earliest days, will be able to expect support, service and leadership from Diocese of Ballarat Catholic Education Ltd, a company which, in the New Year, will take over the governance role formerly exercised by the priests. As far as the parish schools at Dennington and West Warrnambool are concerned, a formal document is expected to be signed on 9 December.
