A PRAYER FOR WINTER Let us huddle together, our community a place of warmth in our lives as we share the flame of hope and connection. Let us allow the frost of isolation and bitterness to melt away as we open ourselves to a sense of peace and spirit. We extend our thoughts to all those who are cold this morning, lacking shelter or love to keep them warm, like bulbs, may we continue to grow and open inside, ready for the spring, to stretch and grow. Amen.

POPE FRANCIS LEADS SUNDAY PRAYER AFTER SURGERY

Pope Francis on Sunday made his first public appearance since undergoing colon surgery last week, greeting the faithful from a balcony at Gemelli hospital in Rome.

“Dear brothers and sisters: Buongiorno,” the pope said, smiling and waving to the well-wishers who had gathered in the vast courtyard in front of the hospital’s main entrance. The crowd — a mix of Romans, tourists, nuns, priests, medical students and hospital staff — applauded and waved back. They also cheered loudly and called out, “Viva il Papa,” or, “Long live the pope.” After thanking the faithful for their prayers during his recovery, Francis, 84, praised Italy’s national health service.

“In these days of being hospitalized, I have experienced once again how important good health care is — accessible to all, as it is in Italy and in other countries,” he said. “This precious benefit must not be lost. It needs to be kept.” Francis appeared to be in good spirits, though his voice seemed weak at times.

On Sunday, Francis also expressed his appreciation for and encouragement to the staff of Gemelli and other hospitals. “They work so hard,” he said.

He called on the faithful to pray for all of those who are sick.

Introducing “some friends” standing next to him on the balcony — several children who are patients of the hospital’s oncology department — the pope said, “Why children suffer is a question that touches the heart.”

“Accompany them with prayer and pray for all those who are sick,” he added, “especially for those in the most difficult conditions. May no one be left alone.” And he wished everyone a happy Sunday and asked those present to pray for him. “Enjoy your lunch,” he said, smiling and waving. “Arrivederci.” “Viva il Papa!” the crowd cheered.

HONOURING THE YOUNG

World Youth Skills Day (15 July) recognises a great need throughout the world, which is echoed in Australia. Almost everywhere unemployment has increased in recent years, and youth unemployment is up to six times greater than adult unemployment. Before young people can grow in the self-confidence necessary to gain the skills and the qualities that will help them to find employment, we need to focus on building relationships based in respect. In accompaniment of young people, we need to focus on building relationships based in respect. From this can grow self-respect and the self-confidence necessary to gain the skills and the qualities that will help them to find employment. Like all of us, they have to be seen as a gift in order to make their gifts available to society.

World Skills Day is an aspiration. It will become a reality when a narrow focus on economic growth produced by competition between individuals is replaced by concern for the good of all people in society. Where the good of the community is put first, the priority will be given to educating young people to be good and resourceful persons, who will acquire the skills needed in their society.
